

Launch into Teaching Online Professional Development Modules Include:

"This has been the most delicious experience of my career! I have never had this kind of immersion into an idea and dialogue with colleagues about the practice of teaching."

"I learned how important it was just to have a conversation with my beginning teachers.... and saying "Hi" is not a conversation... I became more purposeful in working with my beginning teachers.."

- Gaining Ground in Classroom Management
- Analyzing Student Work to Plan and Differentiate Instruction
- Becoming an Effective Urban Educator
- Facilitating Quality Discussions that Enhance Student Learning in Mathematics and Literacy
- Designing and Teaching Creative Curriculum that Aligns with Standards
- Achieving Equity in Classroom Learning Communities
- Improving the Teaching of Writing

- Developing Mentoring Practices that Impact Beginning Teacher and Student Learning (Part A-Introduction)
- Refining Mentoring Practices that Impact Beginning Teacher and Student Learning (Part A is a prerequisite)

- Supporting and Retaining Beginning Teachers in Your School (for principals)

Designed by faculty at Michigan State University, these unique online modules provide opportunities for teachers to analyze situations in their classrooms, write about their own developing practice, and make changes that will improve their teaching effectiveness. In an online community, the instructors provide direct opportunities for teachers to share ideas, learn from each other, and develop as teacher leaders.

These online modules are designed by the Nationally Recognized developers of ASSIST Beginning Teachers and Launch into Teaching at Michigan State University's College of Education.

Fast Facts

American Schools spend $2.6 BILLION annually to replace beginning teachers leaving the profession

Alliance for Excellent Education, policy and research organization report (2006)

14% leave by the end of first year

33% leave within three years

50% leave in five years

ASSIST Beginning Teachers
www.assist.educ.msu.edu

Launch into Teaching www.educ.msu.edu/te/lit

For more information on how you can secure this unique Professional Development for your school district contact us!

(517)353-9135

launch@msu.edu